

The investigation continues...

In the summer of 2025, the private organization Kai-Tai conducted an investigation into the transformation of the Tokyo Tower VR attraction into a "Labyrinth of Fear".

Over 20,000 civilian investigators participated, yielding numerous sightings of the paranormal. However, the mystery remained unsolved. Now, across Japan, VR headsets—similarly transformed into shrieking labyrinths—are being discovered one after another. As the "Labyrinth of Fear" expands, fulfilling a vanished medium's prophecy, a massive, nationwide investigation begins again...

What is "Labyrinth of Fear" ?

"Labyrinth of Fear" at Fuji-Q Highland is one of Japan's most renowned horror attractions.

Since opening in 2003, it terrified over 5.3 million visitors. Known as the world's longest and most terrifying haunted house, it is a legendary destination familiar to all horror fans.
